

MUCH WORK REMAINS FOR STATE SOLONS

DOUBTFUL IF ADJOURNMENT
WILL BE MAY 5TH.

Many Important Measures Far From Being Disposed Of—Anti-Pass Bill
Juggled Between the Two Houses—Governor to Appoint Members of State Tax Commission Soon.

Madison, Wis., April 24.—[Special]—There is hardly a possibility that the legislature will be able to adjourn before May 5th; and those who are familiar with the amount of important work still to be done are doubtful whether it will be finished even by that time. In addition to several minor bills, the important measures still tied up in committee or still before one of the houses include the railway taxation bill, the Orton life insurance tax bill, the street railway tax bills, the anti-pass bill, the general fish and game bill, the True marriage license bill, the university appropriations for current expenses, the Humphrey two-cent passenger bill and the appropriation of a million and a quarter dollars for current expenses and the improvement of the state charitable and penal institutions.

Some of these bills are far from being disposed of, although several have passed one or the other of the two houses. A substitute for the Orton life insurance tax bill will be offered in the senate by Senator Hutton, and if this or any other amendment passes the senate the fight will go back into the assembly again. The two-cent railway fare bill has been reported for indefinite postponement in the assembly, but its author secured delay of final action until Tuesday, when a last effort will be made to save it.

The anti-pass bill is still being juggled back and forth between the two houses. With the last amendment by the senate it was on the assembly calendar Friday, but that body passed it by to discuss other measures first and did not get back to it before adjournment. The early prediction that it would be the last bill passed still holds good.

There will be a determined effort in the assembly Tuesday to pass the bill prohibiting spring shooting of ducks and geese, which was killed by one vote in the assembly. Thursday, after having passed the senate with a contest. The assembly vote has been reconsidered and this also was on the calendar Friday but was not reached. Advocates of the bill have been busy among the members and are confident that the bill will pass when it comes up again.

The assembly killed and buried the Sheridan drive bill. An effort to reconsider the vote by which it was killed failing in the assembly by a tie vote. Opposition to the bill came from the farmers of Racine and Kenosha counties, who were afraid that the cities would get control of the county boards and impose heavy taxes upon them to aid in constructing the drive.

The most important measure passed last week was that creating a state tax commission. It is to consist of three members, to ten years at salaries of $5,000, $4,000 and $3,000 respectively and they are to have the assistance of an expert accountant at $1,800 and a stenographer at $1,200. The only power given the commission is to investigate the taxing and equalization systems of the state and report to the legislature at each session, recommending legislation. Gov. Scofield will appoint the members of the commission early this week. The general opinion is that ex-Congressman Michael Griffin of Eau Claire, will be the first commissioner. Attorney K. K. Kennan of Milwaukee, second, and it is doubtful whether the third has been decided upon. Ex-Mayor James H. Elmore of Green Bay is strongly talked of.

The Story of a Kiss.
The London Daily Mail tells this story of a kiss sold at auction: A fascinating actress, whose name need not be mentioned, being anxious to assist a certain charity in the provinces, offered a kiss to be put up at auction. The bidding was brisk and had advanced in three leaps from two guineas to 30, when without further parley the round sum of £800 was offered. There being no higher bid, the kiss was knocked down by the auctioneer to a colonel in one of the line regiments, who came forward to meet the blushing young lady. But to the surprise of all present, the colonel introduced a dear little fair-haired boy, explained that it was his grandson's fifth birthday, and that he acquired the kiss as a birthday gift for him. Whereupon Miss — took the child in her arms and discharged her debt with interest. The charity, a local one, in which the colonel took a keen interest, was richer by £800 for the granddaddy's generous whim. But a little bird whispered afterward that at the colonel's dinner party that night he had one also "on the strict Q. T."

He'd Know Then.
"Your mamma's got awfully little hands, hasn't she, Jimmie?" "How do you know?" "She shook hands with me yesterday." "Well, you never had 'em smack you!"

Newspaper for Medicants.
Paris is undoubtedly the town of the world for ideas to sprang from its soil. One of its most recent innovations is a newspaper printed solely in the interests of the mendicant element of humanity. Two of its advertisements inserted for the aid of beggars read: "A vacancy has occurred for a blind man who can play the violin. Collections good. Small premium required." "Wanted, at once, for seaside resort—A pair of helpless cripples. Good business. References given and required: also a moderate premium."

Same Thing.

Wooden Cannon.

Quaker guns, that is the trunks of trees, blackened to look like cannon, have often been used to deceive the enemy, but in the Chinese civil wars of three years ago actual cannon made of wood were used. They were made from the trunks of hardwood trees, shaped, bored by means of red-hot pipes from the sugar mills, dried in hot-air draughts and bound with strong ox hides. They made fairly serviceable artillery, one piece being fired more than a hundred times before showing signs of weakness. The projectiles were scrap iron, stones and fire-hardened clay. At the taking of Amoy, wooden cannon used by the Chinese were found; and bamboo artillery has been employed by the Japanese.

Strong Passion.

"Strong emotion," says Darwin, "interrupts the steady flow of nerve force to the muscles." This prevents the proper working of those muscles which are used in speaking. Hence the stammering and incoherence of the speech. "The voice sticks in the throat," to use the words of Vergil. In some cases speech is for a short time impossible, as is seen where a person is said to be "speechless with rage." The hoarseness of the voice is due partly to the fact that passion causes an overaction of all the organs, partly by the fact that for generations harsh and fierce sounds have been made use of to terrify opponents in quarrels, and so have come to be associated instinctively with anger. Possibly the fact also has its influence that the utterance of sounds such as those referred to is in some way or other a relief to the feelings.

Be Cheerful in the Morning.

How many wives realize the importance of being cheerful at the breakfast table? How many stop to think that when their husbands leave them in the morning they carry during the day impressions made at breakfast? A cheerful face at breakfast will do a great deal toward keeping a man in good humor all day. The memory of an untidy, disheveled wife will depress him.

RHODA BROWNHORL REFUSES TO TALK

OSHKOSH WOMAN TAKES RE-FUGE BEHIND NEWSPAPERS

Woodworkers at Sunday Mass Meeting
Decide Not to Strike This Week—
Secretary Ryan Says Trouble Is Coming, However.—P. Kelley, of Kaukauna, Drowned.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 24.—The Oshkosh Northwestern, referring to the appearance of Miss Rhoda M. Brownhorl in court, on the charge of forgery, says:

"Rhoda Brownhorl, or Rhoda Hall, as she is better known in this city, where she resided for a number of years, is a strikingly beautiful woman. She has large, piercing black eyes, black hair and a delicate mouth, which in repose would be called pretty. This morning a reporter called at the jail to see the accused. She occupied a seat in the sheriff's office and as the reporter stepped into the office she was apparently deeply absorbed in the contents of a Chicago paper.

"A beautiful black hat, was all that appeared above the paper and as her eyes glanced along the lines several magnificent ostrich plumes nodded gently with her slightest movement.

"By counting the pages between her fingers the reporter came to the conclusion that she was reading, on the page containing the stock reports. She was intensely interested, apparently, but it was easy to see that the prisoner was merely shading her face from the gaze of the people in the room who happened to have important business with the sheriff.

"The woman's arms began to ache with holding the paper and her glances over the top of the sheet became more frequent.

"The reporter made an attempt to talk with her. She evaded the queries and baffled all attempts to open conversation.

"I have nothing to say, said the prisoner in reply to a polite self-introduction by the reporter."

No Strike This Week.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 24.—There will be no strike in the Oshkosh cash and door factories tomorrow, or this week, though beyond that it is impossible to say. All yesterday afternoon the woodworkers in mass, but secret meetings, wrestled with the problem and at its close that was about all the definite information Andrew Ryan, secretary of the Woodworkers' council, vouchsafed.

"There's a strike coming, though," he said, "and a regiment of artillery could not head it off, but it probably won't include all the factories, and may not include more than one."

In conversing with the manufacturers it was learned that most of the manufacturers had made promises of concessions and that time would be given to see whether they would be fulfilled. Mass meetings will be held from time to time, and at them the course of the woodworkers will be determined. Great indignation was expressed against one company for summarily discharging several men supposed to possess rebellious tendencies.

Drowned Off a Dock.

Kaukauna, Wis., April 24.—P. Kelley, aged 62 years, walked off the dock on the government canal and was drowned Sunday morning at 6:30 o'clock. He was found only a short time after lying on a pile of stone just under the edge of the dock, only partly submerged. He was a papermaker at the Outagamie mills. He leaves a widow and nine children.

Boy Killed by a Train.

De Pere, Wis., April 24.—John Sempier, aged 16, fell under the wheels of a freight this afternoon, while trying to steal a ride. He was cut in two.

New Theory.

When physical culture came into vogue and was applied to the up-bringing of babies the first act of the reformers was to discard the old-fashioned cradle. It was said not to be healthy for the baby to be subject to the seesawing motion of the cradle. Now, a Chicago woman physician has come out with the idea that the baby needs a cradle to get a little exercise and a healthy circulation of the blood. She discarded the cradle for her own children, but for her grandchildren she has grown wiser. She declares that the cradle is not an addler of infantile brains, but only sends the necessary amount of blood to all parts of the body. Something of this theory has made its way into the big babies' hospital in this city, where a doctor is arranging something in the way of exercise, and we may hear before long of the baby gymnasium, in which every day the baby will be properly exercised.

planation That Coghlan Was Drunk.

Berlin, April 24.—[Special]—A semi-official note received today arrests that Secretary Hay expressed to the German ambassador at Washington his disapproval of the conduct of Capt. Coghlan. Berlin officials who have read an account of Coghlan's speech say the incident can be dismissed with the explanation that Coghlan was drunk.

German Ambassador Called on Hay.
Washington, April 24.—[Special]—The German ambassador called on Secretary Hay today. It is understood that Coghlan's speech was discussed. The ambassador construed them as unfriendly and insulting.

Hay semi-officially disavowed Coghlan's utterances, and it is quite likely he will bring the matter to Secretary Long's attention. No reply is yet received from Coghlan to the letter of Long, asking for an explanation.

Coghlan Is Ready.

New York, April 24.—[Special]—Captain Coghlan sailed today when the court martial hinted at and said: "No man can be court-martialed for telling a story that is true."

When told that Chauncey Depew declared that his speech may lead to war, he replied, "Well, tell the senator I am ready."

Her Version of It.

A family of laborers live in an alley in the rear of this little girl's home. They had often been without food, but had had a short period of prosperity, and one of the girls was to be married. The day of the wedding the mother of the little girl was standing at the rear window of her home and she noticed a wagon with goods for the wedding celebration at the home of the poorer neighbors. "First the feast and then the famine," she remarked to no person in particular, and heaved a sigh. "What does that mean, mamma?" asked her daughter. "Oh, I was just speaking of the wedding down there tonight," replied her mother. "There's going to be a wedding down there tonight, papa," said the little one when her father came home. "Is that so?" asked her father. "Yes," she replied with a sigh like her mother's, "first the feast and then the family."

Postmaster Since 1852.

Kahoka (Mo.) Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat: On last Monday the sudden death of William Polker occurred at his home in Acosta, Clark county, Mo. Though a very quiet gentleman, an interesting bit of history is connected with Mr. Polker's life. His family located at the old town of Acosta in the Indian days of Northeast Missouri. When Franklin Pierce became president in 1852, he appointed William Polker postmaster at Acosta, from which place he was never removed except by death. For many years he had the distinction of being the longest continued postmaster in the state, if not in the United States.

Poisoned Bread.

People have been poisoned with bread containing salts of lead, which came from the timber used to heat the oven. The Paris Council of Hygiene, has, therefore, forbidden the employment of unpainted wood from old houses, old sleepers impregnated with creosote or sulphate of copper, and disused blocks of wood paying for heating ovens; on the ground that poisonous volatile salts may arise from them and deposit on the roof or floor of the oven.

Petty Crime Increasing in England.

The British home office report for 1897 shows that while serious crimes tend to diminish in England, there is a great increase of minor offenses. By far the larger number of criminals convicted during the year have been convicted of some crime before—a fact that led the home office to conclude "that neither penal servitude nor imprisonment serves to deter the habitual offender from reverting to crime, and it is the habitual offender who forms the bulk of the prison population."

Nothing Too Good for Hubby.

One of the young gentlemen who has just been appointed in the regular army was married only a few weeks ago, and his bride takes a great deal of interest in his uniform. He left his measure with a military tailor at Washington the other day, and the next afternoon when she was out shopping she dropped in to give some instructions as to the manner in which it was to be trimmed. She told the tailor she did not like the ordinary uniform of a second lieutenant, and desired to have her husband's different. She wanted four bands of gold braid around the sleeve, like Admiral Schley had on his, and after critically examining all the shoulder straps she instructed the tailor to put on her husband's coat a pair that had silver birds embroidered on them, because they were prettier than any of the rest. The tailor tried to advise her that the regulations did not permit a second lieutenant to wear the insignia of an admiral of the navy, or those of a colonel in the army, but she declared that if he could not make the uniform the way she wanted it, she would have her husband patronize somebody else.

NEGRO PREACHER LYNCHED BY MOB

TRIED THIS MORNING AND FOUND GUILTY.

Accused by "Sam" Hose of Paying Him to Kill Farmer Crawford—On the Body Was Pinned Placard With Following Words, "We Must Protect Our Southern Women."

Palmetto, Ga., April 24.—[Special]—Lige Strickland, the negro preacher accused by "Sam" Hose of paying him to kill Farmer Crawford, was tried by a mob this morning and found guilty and promptly hanged.

The body was found shortly after daylight swinging from the limb of a tree about a mile out from town.

His ears and fingers were cut off. On the body was pinned a placard with the following words: "We must protect our southern women."

Strickland was strung up several times in an effort to make him confess, but each time he refused to admit any connection with Hose's crime.

It is quite probable that another negro named Sewell will also be lynched. He said a few days ago that he thought all negroes should be avenged.

Valuable Metal.

Aluminum is now worked on a large scale for all sorts of industrial purposes, and has taken its place as one of the five or six commercial metals of the world. Weight for weight, it is already cheaper than copper and tin; it does not tarnish, is suitable for all kinds of cooking utensils, is largely used in shipbuilding and is a most valuable adjunct to metallurgy, inasmuch as a small addition of aluminum to a mold of steel or brass insures absolutely solid castings.

Good Law.

North Dakota has enacted a law providing for the appointment of a board of physicians to examine the physical and mental conditions of applicants for marriage licenses. Licenses are to be refused to any who suffer from ailments which are likely to manifest themselves in their progeny, especially dipsomania, insanity and tuberculosis. The measure is largely advocated in the hope that other states will follow North Dakota's example in attempting to improve the health of the race.

Lacked One Thing.

"It is a great thing, sir, this newly invented patent corn-husking machine which I am selling. It is drawn by two horses, and will pick and shuck eight acres of corn in a day. Think of it, sir! It lightens the farmer's labors, it makes the toll of corn-husking a mere pastime, and—" "Huh! I don't see how! That 'ere ding-blittered machine don't kiss the girl every time it finds a red ear, does it?"

Bargain Hunting.

It is impossible for all of us men to be the gallant prince who is the devoted slave to the lady in the rose-colored fairy story, but we can offer our seat in the street car to the tired woman who has been "shopping" all day in the vain endeavor to make the $2.25 her husband kindly "gave" her clothe a family of six and make them look as neat and comfortable as the children next door.—L. A. W. Bulletin.

Poor Jack.

Nearly all the children in Cincinnati, and many from other places, have seen Jack, the big grizzly bear at the Zoo who used to sit up with his back against the old tree and catch the peanuts that were thrown to him, and the little visitors out there will miss him very much this summer, for last Tuesday poor Jack died of paralysis. His broken-hearted widow will still catch peanuts at the old stand.

Harmful Effects of Face Powder.

If people who regularly use powder could only realize how destructive the practice is to the skin, and how exceedingly nasty the results are, they would gladly try what radiant, perfect cleanliness would do. Several dollars' worth of rouge and powder can be outdone by a plentiful use of pure water which is only sensibly applied.—Ladies' Home Journal.

PASTORIAL THEMES AT THE CHURCHES

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER TAKEN ADVANTAGE OF.

Rev. Kempton's Morning Subject Was "Repentance Unto Salvation"—In the Evening He Gave Another Sermon on "Difficulties With the Bible."
—Rev. Wilson on "Social Problem."

Rev. Kempton's morning subject at the Baptist church was "Repentance Unto Salvation." His text was in 2 Cor. 7-10. The outline of the sermon was, first, repentance begins with the recognition of sin. Second, repentance is a Godly sorrow for sin. Worldly sorrow is because a man has been found out. Godly sorrow is because of the fact that sin exists in the heart and life of the penitent one. Third, true repentance is a turning away from sin outwardly and inwardly.

In the evening Mr. Kempton gave another sermon in his series, "Difficulties with the Bible." The subject was "The Authorized and Revised Editions of the Bible."

The King James revision of the bible bears the date of 1611; that of the revision, 1885.

At the coronation of King James there were three different bibles in use. King James saw the great glory to his reign if a new revision was made and when it was proposed he immediately favored it. He appointed fifty-four scholars to do the work. They received no pay. They divided into six companies and did their work well. They were in no haste but revised again and again some parts of the work. It took them about five years to complete the work.

There were critics who offered many changes, but their criticisms were not received.

It was only a few years before the bible was received everywhere by the English people.

It is one of the grandest books, as far as language is concerned. It has the greatest influence of all books. It has entered into all of the most precious things in our lives. If it were destroyed, it could easily be replaced by quotations from English literature. For over three centuries it has been growing into the language and affections of the English speaking people, and today millions of people love the old version.

There are many reasons why there was a need of a new revision; many old manuscripts have been found which show that changes ought to be made. The English language has greatly changed, and therefore there are many expressions and words that we cannot readily understand.

Again there are many expressions found in King James version that are not found in the oldest manuscripts.

Again the scholars of King James' day knew very little about the geography or countries of Palestine and Egypt and hence there are mistakes in that regard and we ought to have the very best that scholarship can give.

In June, 1870, the revision of the bible began in England and also by a set of revisors in America. It was revised some six or seven times before it was given to the world. Fourteen years had passed before their work was done. Changes have been made but no essential doctrine has been changed. It is nearer to the original Greek and Hebrew languages than any other version.

When it was published there was the greatest excitement this world ever knew. In two weeks millions of people had it. The whole new testament was telegraphed from New York to Chicago. The longest message ever sent by men, and it was printed in a Chicago daily paper.

Let us prize this precious gift of God.

All Souls Church.

The sermon by Rev. A. G. Wilson at All Souls church yesterday, considered some phases of the social problem. Following is a portion of the sermon:

I do not see how a strong race or a vigorous civilization can exist under any other conditions than the spur of necessity. The survival of the fittest is a cruel law as applied to the individual, but it is the only method of possible progress. If you take away from life the element of strife, or remove individual competition of mind or hand, you reduce the world's workers and give us a race of shirkers. Poverty and riches are relative conditions, and social distinctions on the basis of possession can never be abolished. Nor would it be desirable. Uniformity of either power or possession means barbarism. Variety and diversity are the marks of civilization. Universal wealth, if it were possible, would be universal stagnation. There are only two things adequate to move men to action—authority or necessity; and it is not as bad to be a slave to conditions that may be remedied by labor as to be a slave to authority. Men will do under the spur of necessity what they would not do under the dictation of authority. Military rule is more degrading as a permanent condition than the slavery of toil.

The wealth of the world comes to us in so many forms that if we miss it in some coveted form we may get it in another way. Empty hands are not so much to be deplored as vacant hearts. But whether a man be rich or poor, is very largely a matter of appreciation of what he already has. For riches belong to the man who transacts them into life and service. It is one thing to own wealth and another thing to be owned by wealth. He who has mastered the dollar is rich however few he may possess. But he who is mastered by the dollar is poor however many he may accumulate. To be free men with thinking minds and loving hearts is to have the divine impress upon our lives, and this would be legal tender in any world we strike.

KOSHKONONG DUCKING STORY

Told By a Duck That Visits Those
"Happy Hunting Grounds"

On coming from the south a few days ago, I stopped over at Koskshong as is our usual custom, and found several sportsmen at Bingham's Point. Among the number were Drs. Tom McKee and Ollie Worn, prominent dentists from Whitesboro; F. C. Burpee, a young attorney from Janesville; Wm. Jenny, a prominent attorney from Syracuse and Geo. G. Newbury, a real estate hustler from Chicago. The boys were having lots of fun, running out in the lake, but deprived McKee of the pleasure, on the grounds of his being too many pounds avoirdupois. This did not just suit Tom, so bright and early Sunday morning, before any one else was stirring, Dr. Tom hies himself up to the point, steps into a float and starts out brave as any soldier in the late Cuban war. All went well for a little ways, but all at once Tom began to feel a slight dampness, and on looking around saw the water pouring in the end of the boat. He raised quickly on his knees just as a large wave struck him broadside, and alas, Dr. Tom took a header in the lake. I won't draw any word pictures of how he reached the boat and got back to shore, for he might be mad, but one of our number is missing and I think it must have fallen victim to his unerring aim.

"THE CARPETBAGGER" NEXT

Romantic Comedy in Which Tim
Murphy Will Be Seen

Opie Read, the novelist, and Frank S. Pixley, a newspaper writer of Chicago, the authors of "The Carpetbagger," the new political, romantic comedy, in which Tim Murphy will be seen at Myers Grand, Tuesday, April 25, have supplied that well known comedian with a role which fits him better than any part he has ever had. The carpetbagger in real life, was the only Ozar that American civilization ever produced. He was here only a short time, but while he stayed, he was the liveliest, oddest, shrewdest and most autocratic fellow on earth. In the play, "The Carpetbagger," Mr. Murphy is seen as an ex-Chicago auctioneer, who is sent south in 1897, as governor of Mississippi. It is a living character, and had many a counterpart in the years that saw the carpetbag element dominant in the southern states. Mr. Murphy's company has been selected with considerable care, and is said to be an unusually strong organization. Prominent in the company is Miss Dorothy Sherwood, a charming and rarely beautiful woman, who easily ranks among the foremost of America's younger actresses.

Another Interesting Meeting Held Last Wednesday

Leyden, April 24—Another meeting was held at our school house last Wednesday for the purpose of coming to an agreement in regard to our creamery. Great interest was shown by the farmers, who all agree that a creamery in this village would be very convenient for them and put the village on the boom again. M. P. Riley of Chicago, is spending a few days here shooting ducks and is stopping at the Morrison House. The village blacksmith, T. Mountjoy, made a trip to Janesville Saturday on business. He has been in very poor health this winter and wants to sell out his business if possible and go on a farm. Miss Blanch Morrison returned home Janesville last Friday night on account of the serious illness of her brother, Fred, who has the measles. Geo. Morrison is also home with the measles. C. C. Morrison and J. M. Bodenberger, our night operator, went to Janesville, Saturday on business. Wm. Ade's family are down with the measles. W. Lobin, the storekeeper and postmaster, transacted business in Janesville last week, buying a spring stock of goods. Miss Ida Wright passed through our village one day last week. Mrs. Lawson of Madison, was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. Fish, last week. Dick Culley, one of our industrious young men, is in the employ of Peter Barrett, for the coming season's work. Peter Barrett's new barn will be finished this week Friday. His carpenters then go to Footville. School did not open Monday, because measles were in the teacher's family. D. Van Wart of West Porter, drove through the village Saturday, J. Boss had the misfortune of hurting his hand a few days ago. Mrs. Ralph Blesdale is in the Palmer hospital at Janesville, suffering from a tumor, but is gaining rapidly. Court Pierce has bought a valuable piece of property. Guy Newman has gone to Cookstown to work. Mike Collins is husking the rest of Ole Emerson's corn. Mrs. Henry Finnegan and wife visited with W. Lobin, Sunday. Miss Davis, of Center, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Mountjoy, Sunday. Ora Lacy and Mr. Burns, of Edgerton, visited with J. Tracy over Sunday.

HOLD ROCK COUNTY FAIR THIS YEAR

CITY OF EVANSVILLE CLAIMS
THE HONOR.

Driving Park in the Cut Off City Has Been Leased For That Purpose—
Festivities Will Last Four Days—
Farmers Throughout the County
Will Compete.

Rock county is to have a county fair next fall to be held in Evansville.

The Evansville Enterprise says: The driving park in this city, has been leased for the coming season for the purpose of holding a fair to be held about the first week in September.

The idea of holding a fair grew out of the marked success of the mid-winter fair, and a desire on the part of the people to institute in this city a permanent fair. There is no reason why such a project cannot be eminently successful. There will be no fair of this nature in Rock county this year. Janesville has substituted a mid-winter fair for their county fair, which occurred annually for many years past.

Geographically we are well situated for this enterprising undertaking. Being near the boundary line of three different counties, the attraction toward a common center would be conducive to a large attendance.

Undoubtedly there will be four days fair commencing on Tuesday and ending on Friday. This undertaking which will be with care and the exercise of good judgment, is based upon the support and wishes of the entire people and the hearty co-operation of all enterprising farmers, who are willing to exhibit the products of the farm. This they can justly do as the mid-winter fair held in this city the 21st and 22d of last February clearly demonstrated.

It is hoped that every farmer when he plants his seed, cultivates the soil, and harvests his crop, will have in mind that ultimate idea of competing at the coming fair.

Beautiful samples of commencement cards, invitations, programmes and diplomas for 1899, have been received at the Gazette Job Rooms. We have special facilities for caring for large engraving orders.

"A word to the wise is sufficient" and a word from the wise should be sufficient, but you ask, who are the wise? Those who know. The oft repeated experience of trustworthy persons may be taken for knowledge. Mr. W. M. Terry says Chamberlain's Cough Remedy gives better satisfaction than any other in the market. He has been in the drug business at Elkton, Ky., for twelve years; has sold hundreds of bottles of this remedy and nearly all other cough medicines manufactured, which shows conclusively that Chamberlain's is the most satisfactory to the people, and is the best. My wife has used Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism with great relief, and I can recommend it as a splendid liniment for rheumatism and other household use for which we have found it valuable.—W. J. CUTLER, Red Creek, N. Y.

MENU FOR MONDAY.

Socrates, being asked the way to honest fame, said: "Strive to be what you wish to seem."—John Ruskin.

BREAKFAST.
Ham Omelet. Water Dress.
Graham Muffins. Baked Potatoes.
Coffee.

LUNCHEON.
Potatoes au Gratin.

Canned Apples.

DINNER.
French Vegetable Broth.
Escaloped Chicken.
Potato Croquette. Spring Salad.
Cream Cheese.
Coffee.

FRENCH VEGETABLE BROTH.—Peel and cut into small dice a quarter of good sized white cabbage, a carrot, a turnip, size stalks of celery and an onion. Put them into a frying pan with two table-spoonsful of butter or good dripping, cover them closely and set them at the side of the stove for half an hour. They must cook very slowly. At the end of the half hour pour upon them a pint of hot water, and in this let them simmer two hours or until tender. Season then to taste with salt and pepper, add a pint more boiling water, boil up sharply and take from the fire. Pass croutons of fried bread through this soup.

ESCALOPED CHICKEN.—Mince remnants of chicken. Wash mixes well with chicken, and it is sometimes convenient to add to the wash dish in this way. Put a layer of chicken and a layer of rolled crackers or bread crumbs alternately in a baking dish. Beat an egg in a cup and fill the cup with milk or cream. Salt it and pour it over the chicken. If this does not make the moisture rise even with the top, add gravy or hot water enough to do it. Put lump of butter on the top and brown in the oven.

CHOUQUETTES.—Cook in their skins in plenty of salted water two pounds of potatoes and dry well; then peel them. Put in a saucepan with two ounces of fresh butter and place over the fire. Pass the potatoes through a sieve into the melting butter, stir well and add a couple of spoonsful of fresh butter and the yolks of two eggs. When this paste is thick, put the saucepan at the back of the fire and let it get cool enough to form into croquettes. Roll them in flour and bread crumbs and put them aside to be cooked like all croquettes, in deep fat 15 minutes before serving.

Grain-O Brings Relief

to the coffee drinker. Coffee drinking is a habit that is universally indulged in and almost as universally injurious. Have you tried Grain-O? It is almost like coffee, but the effects are just the opposite. Coffee upsets the stomach and ruins the digestion, effects the heart and disturbs the whole nervous system. Grain-O tones up the stomach, aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. There is nothing but nourishment in Grain-O. It can't be otherwise 15 and 50c per package.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS LOSE

Deaf Mutes Win Saturday's Game by Narrow Margin.

The first base ball game of the season for the local High school boys to participate in was played at Delavan Saturday afternoon. The nine from the State School for the Deaf and Dumb carried off the honors of the game, the score being 10 to 9.

Defeat is no doubt owing to the fact that several of the regular High school team were unable to go, therefore the boys are not discouraged and expect to "get even" when the return game is played later in the season.

Palmer and Carr were the battery for the visitors and they did some clever work, as did Kearney, who made two difficult catches.

A game is to be played at Athletic park in this city next Saturday between the local High school boys and the Beloit Academy team.

President King's Mistake.

From the Sioux City Journal: "I think I never heard a more ludicrous instance of absent-mindedness than one which Dr. William F. King, president of our denominational Cornell College at Mount Vernon, tells on himself," says Rev. S. P. Marsh, pastor of Haddock Memorial M. E. church. "The doctor had been invited to a dinner at Cedar Rapids and just before the guests were to sit down he was called to the telephone to communicate with somebody at the college. The telephone did not work very well and he had to call 'Hello' an exasperating number of times. Finally he got through with the communication and passed at once to the dining-room, where the other guests had taken seats and were awaiting him. He arose upon invitation to say grace and, assuming a devout attitude, with bowed head and closed eyes and the tips of his fingers joined, he astounded the company and himself as well by exclaiming: 'Hello! Due solemnity was finally restored and the blessing asked in conventional form.'

"Obvious Reasons"

Johnny—Pa, Mr. Brownlow said, for obvious reasons, he should be unable to be at the meeting at the school-house tonight. What does he mean by "obvious reasons?" Pa—Why, my son, when a man has any reasons that he can't think of or has reasons that he does not care to name he says his reasons are obvious.—Boston Transcript.

LIZZIE BORDEN TODAY

SHE IS NOW LIVING IN A COSTLY NEW RESIDENCE.

How the Central Figure in the Famous Fall River Trial is Living It Down—From Homestead to a More Fashionable Quarter.

Outside of the busy little manufacturing city of Fall River, Mass., there are few people who know anything of the recent life and present circumstances of Lizzie Borden, whose famous trial and subsequent acquittal, on the charge of murdering her father and mother, six years ago, will not soon be forgotten.

Lizzie Borden, he says, was not in Europe, nor is it true that she intends "opening a select boarding school for young ladies next season." It is true that she may have plans in view for occupying her time teaching a few private pupils, but there is no ground for saying that she is going to open a boarding school. She is more likely to found a library or give the town an observatory fitted out with a good telescope of modest dimensions, but strong magnifying powers; or perhaps she may give the County Gaol an adequate reading room, thus enabling the inmates to endure the maddening monotony of prison life. I called on Miss Borden and found her the same quiet and exceedingly modest young lady that she was during the uneventful years preceding the fearful tragedy. She has grown a little stouter in figure, a little more reserved in manner, a little more uncommunicative in her associations with people, and besides she now wears glasses, which lend just a hint of exclusiveness to her demeanor, but after all she is the same, well-bred, pleasing appearing young lady who was welcomed all her life, by the best families of Fall River.

Those thrilling scenes of '92-3 are of the past. All that remain of the faded Borden family are the two sisters—Lizzie Borden, aged 37 years, and Emma L. Borden, 42 years old. They are inseparable companions.

Lizzie is much the younger in appearance and manner. She is a plump, large-statured young woman, with a large head, and fair, full face, with heavy light brown hair, and a well-developed almost noble brow. She now lives "on the Hill," in the fashionable part of the city, overlooking the bay and river. The neighborhood was not congenial to Miss Borden, many of whose young friends lived on the Hill high above the dust and roar of trucks and traffic.

After the trial Miss Borden, who is said to have inherited the business instincts of her prudent father, took up her home a mile away to the north where the imposing architecture of handsome villas crowns the heights of the fashionable district. Finding herself possessed of her father's fortune of $350,000—that is, she and her sister—it was easy to buy a comfortable home amid quiet elegant surroundings.

Miss Borden declines to discuss any feature of her life or affairs except with her attorney, banker and business agent. But those who have been intimate with herself and family long years speak in this strain:

"Since she was tried for her life and acquitted, she has lived very quietly, and seen very few of her old friends and acquaintances. One of the first things she did was to buy a house in the aristocratic part of the town. She complained when living with her family down in the manufacturing district of a lack of conveniences. She wanted gaze, the steady shrinking away of those who were once friends and had red blood in their veins, requires the nerve of battlefield heroes.

It has long been a subject of wonder that Lizzie Borden has remained in Fall River seeking to live down the inevitable connection of her name with the most terrible crime of the century. When the law declared her innocent, it is asked, would she not have been more than justified in shaking the dust of Fall River from her feet forever, and going elsewhere for happiness and a home? What would any honest, outraged victim feel after vindication but indignation and contempt for a community that has persistently and remorselessly sought to prove her guilty?

And again it is asked, if she thought it best to remain and live down criticism, why, in the full consciousness of her innocence, did she not instantly begin a search for the murderer of her father?

Lizzie Borden had a fortune, and the best detective skill in the country, with all the power of the law, was at her command.

In 1892 a noted funeral was held in this town of Fall River. In the coffin were the remains of father and step-mother, hacked to pieces with an ax. The solemnity of that fearful day still hangs like a pall over all belonging to the unfortunate Borden family. Mr. Andrew J. Borden, the father of Lizzie, was numbered among the wealthy and influential men of the city. Besides owning valuable farms and real estate in town, he was president of the Union Savings bank, a director of the Merchants' Manufacturing Company, of a safe deposit company, of the Troy Cotton and Woolen Manufactory and other money-making enterprises, besides a large and prosperous undertaking concern in Fall River. Just before his assassination he had built one of the finest business blocks in the city.

The Borden came from one of the oldest and most representative New England families, and a noted trait for 200 years of all bearing the name has been fearlessness and unbending will when pursued or pursuing. When once embarked in a scheme or enterprise, when once determined to carry out a purpose, they never yield. This trait, it is declared, is possessed in an eminent degree by Lizzie Borden.

Sultan Abdul Hamid has inherited by the death of his grandaunt, Adalek Sultana, the handsome fortune of 1,200,000 Turkish pounds. The aged princess was the sister of Abdul Medjed, and the only surviving daughter of the reforming Sultan Mahmoud. The sultan has a still older female relative living, in the person of Azeme Sultana, a daughter of Sultan Selim III, who has entered her ninety-ninth year. She has resided for over sixty years in the Seraglio, the scene of her father's dramatic assassination, in the first decade of this century.

Stomach Troubles

Caused by Loss of Nerve Force, Weakened Vitality and Nervous Prostration Cured by ## Dr. Miles' Nervine.

It cannot be too strongly impressed upon the minds of American men and women that the nerves rule every action of our bodies and control all the affairs of our existence. The nervous system is the fountain from which flows the very essence of life, and which preserves throughout all the years of our lives that personality and individuality that makes each one of us what we are. When the nerves become irritated or exhausted from sickness or strain, when the brain has been weakened from overwork, loss of sleep, or any other cause whatever, derangements of the nerve centers follow, and such manifestations as sick headaches, loss of appetite, flatulency, sour stomach, dyspepsia, nervousness, irritability, follow as a natural result. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is fully competent to correct all such disordered conditions of the nerve centers. It gives the tortured nerves a rest and permits them to recover their tone and steadiness. It invigorates the digestive organism, puts new life into the blood and soothes the tired brain to sweet, refreshing sleep. By it thousands of weak, sickly, incompetent invalids have been made strong and healthy.

"Four years ago I suffered an attack of bilious fever which left my stomach in a very weak condition. The nerves seemed to be prostrated and I suffered distressing pains after eating. Gas would form on my stomach and cause me to feel weak and sick. I was treated by physicians in Portland, but they were unable to relieve me. A friend advised me to take Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, which I did. The results were in every way entirely satisfactory. I was cured of my stomach trouble and since then my health has been splendid." STEPHEN V. SHACKFORD, Gorham, Maine.

"I suffered with nervous dyspepsia which caused me much trouble and uneasiness and which refused to yield to the doctors' medicine or advertised remedies until I commenced using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I am happy to say that after using that great remedy for a few weeks my stomach trouble entirely disappeared and I have not seen a sign of dyspepsia since." W. I. WASHBURN, Westfield, Pa.

"Loss of sleep and the care and anxiety from attending a sick bed broke down my nervous system and I lost all my good natured feelings. I had no appetite, my digestion was badly deranged and I was dull and tired all the time. In two days after I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine I could see a change for the better. As I continued the treatment my appetite returned, my sleep became restful and refreshing and in a week I was up and about the house. Since that time my health has been good." MRS. FRANCIS COFFMAN, Rushville, Va.

"For nearly three years I suffered with severe stomach trouble. Would have cramping pain in the stomach that would almost seem to kill me. When the doctors failed I began using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine from which I received untold benefit. I was finally cured of the trouble and for several years have enjoyed excellent health." M. G. COMBS, Petersburg, Ill.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY.

1547—Victory of Charles V at Muhlberg and end of the war of the Smalcald league.
1731—Daniel Foe, or De Foe, author of "Robinson Crusoe" and other works died, born 1689. De Foe was an erratic genius, even for the times in which he lived. His fortunes were summed up by himself in the following: "No man has tasted different fortunes more, and 18 times I have been rich and poor." He enjoyed the favor of the king and endured the shame of the pillory and prison.
1784—Thomas Addis Emmet, Irish patriot, born in Cork; died 1827.
1861—Carrington passed the forts and thus insured the capture of New Orleans.
1863—Field Marshal von Moltke of Germany died at Berlin, born 1801.
1897—The Greek army retired from Marit, after a force fight, to Pharsalia, virtually yielding the key to Greece.
1898—President McKinley called for 125,000 volunteers to carry out the instructions of congress and interfere in Cuba.

THE INEVITABLE SEQUENCE

One of the surest as well as one of the most satisfactory evidences of returned prosperity is the general advance in wages. The increase is not confined to any one section of the country or to any one branch of industry. From the New England States, from Pennsylvania, Illinois, New York, Michigan, Ohio, Tennessee, Alabama and other states comes the same story of advancing wages. Cotton operatives, iron and steel workers, miners, employees of tin plate companies and other classes of workmen all have profited from an advance of wages. The commercial agencies estimate that the advances already reported affect fully 175,000 workers.

During the last campaign, President McKinley said in one of his speeches that what the country wanted was not open mints but open mills for the employment of American labor. That was what he proposed to see accomplished if he were elected. That is what has been accomplished, thanks to the prompt measures taken by the president to secure the American market to American producers by the reenactment of a protective tariff law. American mills have been opened and American labor employed, and now comes the inevitable sequence of an increased demand for labor, the increase of wages. And, as the wages of partial free-trade become more and more repaired under protection, wages will probably advance more and more, until they reach high water mark in all industries. American workmen, says the American Economist, will not be likely to consent to any repetition of the folly of 1892 which resulted in the paralysis of American industries and in the idleness of the American people.

Although the jury that heard all the evidence that could be adduced against Senator Quay decided that he was "not guilty," some people refuse to consider the senator vindicated. A public man, it would seem, has no rights, and even the verdict of a court of justice will not be accepted unless it is a conviction. Then, however, it will readily be accepted as absolute truth. This is "man's inhumanity to man." Senator Quay has met his accusers in court, and worsted them. Can he do more? Should more be expected of him? What do his critics want?

When the new Milwaukee post office was thrown open for public inspection, the people made the discovery that many husbands, wives, sons and daughters were maintaining private mail boxes. Naturally, the question of why things were thus was at once raised, and the coolness in some families is only surpassed by the frigidity of the vaults in which the stuff "that made Milwaukee famous" is kept.

Governor Pingree, of Michigan, has signed the law repealing the provision prohibiting the killing of ducks in the spring. Michigan people got tired of legislating away their rights to the people of other states. The Wisconsin legislature should profit by Michigan's experience.

Five cases of yellow fever are reported from Havana, but no Americans are on the list. It would appear that hygienic rules are potent in heading off the attacks of "Yellow Jack."

The Kenosha Golf club has imported a teacher from Scotland. Add still some people deny that prosperity has come to us.

Mayor Higgins, of Racine, contemplates the appointment of two women as members of the board of education.

The chair trust may properly be classified as a stiff backed combination.

Potatoes Prevent Gout.
Gout is rarely known among the working classes of Ireland. Their immunity from this complaint is thought to be due to the fact that their food consists largely of potatoes.

AN ULTIMATUM.

"And we won't ever finish our new castle now, Maysie?" said Teddie, dolefully.
"I call it a mean shame!" cried Maysie. "Must you go, Teddie? Did your mamma say you were just obliged to?"
Teddie nodded, and his blue eyes were wistful. "Just obliged to. You see, Maysie, we are poor. It is because my papa died, mamma says, and that is why we have to do without a great many things that we want. Mamma was so sick this summer that Dr. James said she must come to the seashore to get well. And so we came, and now we haven't any more money, and so we are just obliged to go back."

Maysie tossed up her head. "Well, I just wouldn't. Why don't you stamp your feet and scream? That's the way I do when I want something, and Sally nearly always lets me have it."
There was a little silence. Teddie sighed wistfully, and Maysie sat with her chin in her little brown hand and her dark eyes fixed thoughtfully on the sea. She was thinking hard. Suddenly she sat upright and her cheeks flamed excitedly. "I'll just tell you what, Teddie," she cried. "I've thought of a splendid plan. You haven't any papa and I haven't any mamma. Now, my papa is rich, you know—ever so rich—and he can do anything he likes. I'll just ask him to adopt you and your mamma. Then you will be my brother, you know, and we will each have a mamma and a papa."

Here Maysie was struck by a possible flaw in her splendid plan. "Are mamma's nice?" she asked.

But Teddie dispelled her fears instantly.

"Deed they are," he cried enthusiastically. "They are just as nice as nice! Why, Maysie, you would just love my mamma. She is so pretty, and she can sing as soft and sweet as birds, and she can tell such beautiful stories all about fairies and things."
"Can she?" Maysie's eyes sparkled. "Why, that is splendid. And then we can stay here and finish our beautiful castle." "I will not have to go home, then," said Teddie. "Maysie, you do think of splendid things. You thought of the castle and the sand cave and everything."

Teddie gazed at her admiringly. "Oh, that's nothing," she said with fine indifference. "I always think of things. Now I'll go and ask papa."

"All right," said Teddie. "And I won't tell mamma till you come, so we can surprise her. I'll go home now. Good-by, Maysie."

"Good-by," Maysie sped across the sands, and said to herself a la Sally "My lucky stars," when she saw her papa coming toward her along the shore, a big, brown bearded man, with merry eyes.

"Hello, Puss, what is the news? You look important," he said, tumbling her curls over her head.

"Well, I guess it is important," said Maysie. "I have just settled about having a brother and a mamma. Such a nice boy, and I know his mamma is nice, too. You won't mind having a little boy, will you, papa?"
"You see," went on Maysie, "the little boy's name is Teddie, and I've played with him every day since we came. We are building a beautiful castle now, such a grand one, with rooms and rooms, but if Teddie goes away we can't ever finish it. They are so poor, you know, papa, that they can't stay here any longer. And so I told him that I would just ask you to adopt him and his mamma. We are rich, aren't we, papa? And there is lots of room in our house. And you know, papa, you often say if only I had a mother to manage me. And sometimes I get so lonely without anyone to play with. Teddie is lonely, too, and when he

"KATHLEEN!" HE CRIED.
Goes home he won't have anything to eat but bread—just only bread, papa."

"Dear me!" said her papa. "Where did you pick up this little ragamuffin, Maysie?"
"Why, papa!" cried Maysie, indignantly. "He isn't a ragamuffin at all! Sally says he is more ladylike than I am. But I can run faster than he can, and he was afraid of the water at first!" Maysie sniffed contemptuously, and her papa laughed outright. Maysie considered this a good sign and she took his hand coaxingly. "Papa, how would you like to sleep in a bed with the rain all leaking down on it, and only bread to eat? Teddie's mamma cries about it. And you don't want your little girl to be lonesome, do you?"

"You sly little witch!" cried this good-natured father. "But would nothing less than adoption suit your highness? It would give me a great deal of trouble, you know, even with my limitless wealth. Now suppose you and I buy Teddie something nice and see what we can do for his mamma. Won't that do?"

"Oh, no, no, that won't do at all. I want them to live with us and stay with us always. Now, papa, do say yes."

"But, my dear little girl, that can not be done. Don't you know that it is as much as I can do to manage you, without having another youngster on my hands? However, we will go and see them now and then decide what is to be done."

Wise little Maysie said no more. She felt sure that when her papa saw Teddie's soft, fair curls and Teddie's pretty mamma he would succumb at once.

When they reached the tiny cottage he was a little surprised, and thinking that Teddie's mother was perhaps a servant there, was about to go to the side door. But Maysie declared that they lived here, and knocked calmly at the front door. It was opened by Teddie himself, at sight of whom—for the little boy bowed with the prettiest manner in the world—Mr. Garland was still more astonished.

"This is Teddie, papa," said Maysie. "And this is Teddie's mamma." Upon which the little people withdrew to the front doorstep to discuss matters of importance, including the rapidly progressing castle and the latest news from the bedside of a sick kitten. Maysie had decided that they could safely leave their parents to get acquainted.

A fair-haired little woman, gowned in black, rose to meet Mr. Garland, and for a moment both gazed at each other in mute wonder. Then he took a step forward.

"Kathleen!" he cried.

She held out her hand, then and smiled sadly. "Yes, it is I. Have I changed so much? You have not changed at all, Jack. You look just the same."

"You have changed. But to find you here! You have been ill! Kathleen, what is this I hear about your troubles?"

The childish voice seemed to ring in his ears again. "Teddie's mamma cries about it," and suddenly he bent over her and took her hand in his strong, tender grasp.

This brave little woman had battled with the world in silence, but now at the first touch of sympathy she gave way; a sob rose in her throat, two tears rolled down her pale cheeks, and in a moment her head was on his arm.

"Kathleen, my Kathleen," he whispered passionately. "Let us forget our foolish quarrel. I know you loved me in the old days, and I have loved you always. Let us begin over again. We are older and wiser; we will not let our youthful folly stand between us. You will not throw away your happiness and mine?"

The children returned some time later. Mr. Garland lifted the blue-eyed boy in his arms, and led Maysie to the sofa.

"There, dear," he said, "kiss your mamma. It is all settled. I have adopted both of them."

"Oh, I knew you would," said Maysie, matter-of-factly. "And now, Teddie, we'll go and finish the castle."

MCKINLEY TO VISIT THE BOWER CITY

PRESIDENT IS EXPECTED HERE NEXT JULY.

Officials Of Northwestern Railroad Send the News to Mayor Richardson—Public Meeting Called For Tomorrow Night—Could Probably Be Induced to Speak in Park.

William McKinley, president of the United States, will visit Janesville in July.

Mayor Victor P. Richardson received news from the officials of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad in Chicago, who will have charge of the president's train in this section of the country, while it is westward bound.

Mayor Richardson issued the following call this morning:

To the Citizens of Janesville—I have received notice from the officials of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company, that President McKinley would pass through Janesville on his way to St. Paul in July next, and believing that all the citizens of Janesville would be interested in having him stop here, I take the liberty of asking all who are interested in this matter to meet at the common council room on Tuesday evening, April 25, at 8 p. m.

VICTOR P. RICHARDSON.
The object of the meeting is to outline plans for a reception to be accorded the nation's chief executive on his arrival in the Bower City.

After leaving Chicago, the president's train will make no stops of any great length until St. Paul is reached.

In case the city of Janesville and Rock county could be induced to plan and carry out a rousing reception, there is little doubt but that the president could be induced to leave his private train and proceed to the city park and deliver a speech.

If such a program could be carried out it would be the means of bringing thousands of visitors here.

If the president's stop would cover only an hour's time, the above plan will in all probability be carried out.

During the presidential election, Rock county accorded McKinley the largest republican plurality of any county in the Badger state.

CAUGHT BY CUPID.

Bennett, Shafter.

Last Wednesday evening, April 19th, at Chicago, Rev. H. Hegner, of the West Side Methodist church, spoke the words that united in marriage Hiram G. Bennett, of this city, and Miss Mary Shafter, of Denver, Col. The marriage, which was a quiet affair, took place about 9 o'clock. The bride and groom were attended by Miss Eva McCullough and W. K. Stephens. After the ceremony congratulations and good wishes were extended. The happy couple went immediately to housekeeping in a cozy furnished flat on Wabash avenue.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bennett, of this city. He is connected with the Great Northern hotel and has made rapid advances.

CAPTURE SIX MORE WOLVES

W. A. Davis, Of Delavan, Makes Lucky Find Yesterday Morning.

W. A. Davis, of Delavan, brought six wolf scalps into County Clerk Starr's office this morning, receiving in exchange the sixty dollars state and county bounty.

Mr. Davis stated that he discovered the wolves on the Chesebro farm in the town of Bradford, having discovered the nest by following tracks leading from a stream.

Within the past month Rock county and the state of Wisconsin have paid out jointly $220 in bounties on wolves captured in this county.

AN EARLY MORNING BLAZE

Flames Discovered at the Janesville Machine Company Plant.

At 1:24 o'clock this morning, an alarm of fire was turned in calling the department to the Janesville Machine Company's plant. Flames were discovered on the outside of the sand house adjoining the new foundry building at the corner of River and Center streets.

With the aid of chemicals the flames were easily extinguished and the damage was nominal.

Chief Spencer says it looks as though some person set fire to the building.

When the jelly is forming, strain, return to the fire, add a cup of powdered sugar, let them cook a few minutes to thicken; wet a pretty mold, pour in the jelly and put it on the ice until needed, some hours before serving. Many would use gelatin, which is now days very well made. This is an old-fashioned recipe, but at all events it will not taste like gelatin, which occasionally is the defect of gelatinous sweets in very good households.

TEAMSTERS complain that Jackson street bridge is in a very dangerous condition. The plank is so weak that horses break through. A good deal of building stone has been hauled across the bridge lately and a slab of stone has been used to patch one hole near the approach.

ALL the lumber on the Wilcox lot between Park street and the river has been sold to Superintendent W. M. Ross. Mr. Ross will use the lumber in building a barn on his Forest Park property. The contract calls for the removal of the debris by May 1. As this does away with a serious fire hazard Park street property owners are much pleased.

Mrs. Bosworth's lecture this evening in the Congregational parlors will doubtless be of interest to many who have not cared for the previous lectures on the art of the ancient and medieval times. To many, the art of these periods is more familiar than the art of the present day, and therefore the interpretation of the great artists of our own times, will be of special interest to all. The lecture will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

BURGLARS COMMIT DARING ROBBERIES

LOCAL JUVENILES PROBABLY RESPONSIBLE.

Entered Lyman Morse's Restaurant and Took Only Candy.—At Alderman James Sennett's Saloon They Made Considerable Noise and Left Taking Some Small Change.

Between 2 and 4 o'clock this morning burglars entered the Lyman Morse restaurant at 159 West Milwaukee street, and the James Sennett saloon at 213 West Milwaukee street.

At both places they were apparently frightened, as they left without securing plunder of any value.

Chief Hogan says the work was no doubt that of local youths.

They first visited the Morse restaurant, where they gained an entrance by forcing in the rear door. They opened the money drawer, in which position it was found this morning at 5 o'clock by Mrs. Morse.

A few pennies were in the drawer, but these they left undisturbed.

The door of the candy case was found open and from a dish the thieves helped themselves, dropping considerable candy on the floor.

An electric light was burning at the time and no doubt the thieves were frightened away leaving via the rear door, through which they entered.

While making their exit, they knocked over a gasoline can in the kitchen that stood in their way.

Orville Morse, who acts as night clerk at the Grand Hotel, entered the restaurant at 1:30 o'clock this morning and at that time all was well.

Sennett's Place Next.

At James Sennett's saloon, thieves gained an entrance through a window which they pulled down from the top.

After getting inside they pulled a card table close to the window so that they could make their escape in a hurry.

In pulling the table across the room it made considerable noise which aroused Mr. Sennett, who resides with his family over the saloon. He got up and looked out of the front window but saw no one.

The thieves undoubtedly hearing foot steps above took their departure. As they ran down the alley, Mr. Sennett heard them, but was unable to see the retreating forms.

The police are of the opinion that the same parties entered both places.

Boys Find Cigars.

Small boys playing near the corner of Academy and Wall streets discovered six boxes of cigars this morning and turned them over to the police. The contents were high priced goods and belonged to neither Sennett nor Morse.

ASLEEP IN JESUS.

Edward D. Hall.

Yesterday morning at 1 o'clock Edward D. Hall closed his eyes to things material and passed into the unknown beyond. A little over a week ago, Mr. Hall suffered a severe stroke of paralysis, which caused him untold pain. Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock he had a second stroke, after which he failed rapidly until the end of life's journey came.

Mr. Hall was born at Middletown, Connecticut, and was sixty-five years of age last August. For the past ten years he had resided in this city. For some time he was engaged in the harness business with his son, W. H. Hall, in Fredendall's block, corner of South Main and Court streets. Later he was engaged in the grocery business. He was a conservative, quiet and unassuming gentleman, a kind husband and father. He leaves to mourn his departure a widow and eight children, five boys and three girls. They are W. H. Hall, Theodore Hall and Miss Alice Hall of this city; Mrs. Archie Waterman, of Oregon, Wis.; Frederick Hall of Evansville, Wis.; Mrs. Augustus Little of Elmore, Minnesota; and Robert and Edward Hall of Minneapolis.

The funeral services will be held at the residence Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Paul Laskowski.

Funeral services over the remains of the late Paul Laskowski were held from St. Mary's church this morning at 9:30 o'clock. The funeral party left the house, 156 Hickory street, at 9 o'clock. Rev. Father Wm. A. Goebel officiated and the interment was in Mount Olivet cemetery.

The pall bearers were James Knipschield, Patrick McGinley, Patrick Cantwell, Philip Knippenberg, Barney Feeley and James Hagerty.

Frederick Scott.

CIGAROLGY.

Indications of Character in the Manner of Handling the Weed.

When you see a man grip a cigar between his teeth and hold it fast, careless of whether it burns or not, you can set him down as an aggressive, calculating and exacting, not to say canny, individual. If a man smokes a cigar deliberately, just enough to keep it lighted, and delights in taking it from his mouth and watch the blue smoke from it curl upward, he is likely to be an easy-going man, good-natured and honest. There is another fellow who smokes intermittently, takes a puff and then rests, and fumbles his cigar about. He is apt to have little decision of character, and to be easily affected by circumstances. A man may be nervous and fumble his cigar a good bit, and in this event he is a would-be swell, vain and frivolous. He invariably tilts his cigar upward, while a sensible, level-headed fellow will hold it straight out from the mouth. When you see a man chewing up an unlighted cigar, and twisting it about, he is nervous, but of great tenacity. A man who cannot keep his cigar alight has a whole-souled disposition. He has a lively nature, is a half-fellow-well-met, glib of tongue, and usually a good story teller.

New Drug Law.

New York Spec. Pittsburgh Dispatch. In the future all poisons sold by druggists here must be encased in bottles having very rough surfaces. This became a law today, and will obviate the danger, should you be suddenly taken ill during the night, of getting hold of the poison bottle in the closet instead of one containing the proper remedy. The bottle containing the poison can easily be distinguished by the touch. Your legislators might do well to give this matter their attention.

MAKES SWEET BIRDS SING.

Southern Girl Who Earns Money by Bird Training.

A southern woman has lately added a new chronicle to the already lengthy list of feminine achievements to earn money. She raises and trains native song birds. Miss Louise Cheatum lives near the popular winter resort, Aiken, S. C., and the idea was suggested by the sale of a pet mocking bird. This bird came to her through a negro boy whom she caught robbing the parent nest. The fledgling was the weakling of the flock, and for that reason the boy considered it worthless and left it on the ground to die. Miss Cheatum rescued and raised it. The second winter of the bird's life it was purchased by a northern visitor to Aiken, who, chancing to pass the house, heard it singing. This sale gave the young woman an idea which she was not slow to follow, and now she does a thriving business with native song birds of the south. Miss Cheatum does not attempt to hatch them herself, but, watching her chance, goes boldly to the spot where the parent birds have made their homes and lifts the nests, with their young broods, off. This is the best and most humane method, especially with the mocking birds, for if a human hand once enters their nest the parent bird will kill every remaining fledgling, and, according to Miss Cheatum, her greatest enemies are these same parent birds, for they try in every way to poison a bird which they find caged.

PRIMITIVE WAY OF COUNTING.

People of the Murray Islands Know Nothing of Arithmetic.

From the New York Herald: An expedition recently sent out from England to the Murray Islands has brought some interesting information about the islanders. These primitive people, it appears, cannot count higher than two. "Netat" is their word for one, and "nets" for two. When they want to say three they say "one-two" (netat-nets), and when they want to say four they say "two-two" (nets-nets). Higher figures than these they express by means of their bodies. Thus, they begin to count from the little finger of the left hand, and, proceeding thence to the other fingers, they successively reach the wrist, the arm, the shoulder, the right arm, the right wrist and finally the fingers of the right hand. In this way they can count as high as thirty-one. When they want to express a higher number than this they can only use the word "galve," which signifies many. This ancient method of counting, however, is fast disappearing, thanks to the strenuous efforts which the English are making to teach the islanders the ordinary rules of arithmetic. Ethnologists, therefore, are especially glad that information about this ancient method of counting has come to them just as it was on the point of disappearing forever.

It is pitiable to see women struggle to keep up with the styles. They sacrifice personal neatness, their views on hygiene, and their pocketbooks in their efforts to keep abreast with the fickle goddess. It betrays a deplorable lack of personal neatness and a disregard for health that are beyond comprehension.

COUNTRY RULED BY WOMEN.

Swiss Commune Where the Wives Fill the Husband's Places.

The feminine element in protesting America that longs for equal suffrage might gain their desires by emigrating across the seas to the little country hemmed in by the Alps. A whole town in the Swiss mountains has suddenly come under petticoat government. This is in the Canton Ticino, where stern necessity required that the women should be allowed to vote. So many of the men had emigrated to seek for work that the municipality was without voters and could not make laws and elect officers. The commune of Melano having especially suffered from the dearth of men, and all parish business having come to a standstill, the parish council has decreed that during the months of spring and summer the emancipation of women has become a necessity for the discharge of public business; that, therefore, in default of deputies of the male sex, each member of the parish council may be represented by a woman member of his own household, the women having the same right to vote as belonged to the duly elected but mainly absentee council of males. In consequence of this measure the commune of Melano is at present administered by a council of wives and mothers, assisted by a few aged men and invalids, who are stated to form the opposition. The liberal press of Ticino approves this new form of government, while the Catholic organs are strongly opposed to it.

It is the devout wish of nearly all people to live to a ripe old age. None of us want to die young. This universal desire can be realized if care be taken of the health in early and middle life. A little precaution then will add many years to our existence. Death can be kept away a long time. Happy, healthy old age will be the lot of the woman who promptly corrects the ailments which afflict her sex. In youth, Wine of Cardui will take the female child safely over the dividing line between girlhood and womanhood. As a wife she needs it to help her through the trials of pregnancy and childbirth with as little discomfort as possible. At the Change of Life it will help her over the dangerous place that appears in her pathway between 40 and 50. Then will come many years of truly blissful existence. She will grow old slowly and gracefully. To the last she will preserve that charm and beauty which are always characteristic of perfectly healthy grandmothers. It is for women alone to decide whether they will be healthy or sick. The remedy for their sickness is close at hand.

"BIG FOOT" WALLACE.

ADVENTURES OF A REMARKABLE AMERICAN CHARACTER.

Recalled by His Death, Which Has Just Been Recorded at Devine, Texas—Fighting Desperados and Indians His Trade for Sixty Years.

"Bigfoot" Wallace is dead. When he gave up the ghost on his ranch near Devine the most remarkable man in Texas had ceased to live. He was 51 years old.

All the romance of sixty years of border life was crowded into his adventurous career. At the age of 20 he left his home at Lexington, Va., and went to Texas for the express purpose of avenging the death of his brother, who was captured and slain by Mexicans in 1836. He was a participant in the remarkable struggles on the Texas border before the war with Mexico, and was everywhere known as a fearless fighter and an implacable foe. His name was for more than fifty years a household word in Texas. In the gloomy dungeons of Perote it took seven giant Mexicans to throw this struggling Texan to the earth and bind him. After he had lain fourteen days chained hand and foot face downward to a rock, without food or water, when the thoughts were cut and the rivets forced apart his first act was to spring at one of his tormentors and try to throttle him.

When Wallace arrived in Texas the war of independence had about ended, Santa Anna was a prisoner and it was believed that a permanent peace would soon be established between Texas and Mexico. The army had been collected in the eastern part of the republic for the purpose of fighting the Mexicans, and as a consequence the frontier was very poorly protected. The Comanches and other hostile tribes took advantage of this condition of affairs and raided the settlements at their pleasure. It was not long, however, before the commander of the army—who was a no less important character than Albert Sidney Johnston—could spare a force to meet these red devils and punish their audacity with sword and fire. Big Foot Wallace at once enlisted and served for many years with these frontier troops, and it was not long before he was known on the border as one of the most daring and desperate Indian fighters on the plains.

In one of these dangerous expeditions Wallace came near losing his life. He was crawling along a ledge of rock by the side of a bluff not far from Austin. There was barely room for him to walk along the ledge, which was far above the stream that was roaring and splashing below him. He came to a projecting rock and peeped cautiously around. It so happened that a big Comanche warrior, who had evidently been watching Wallace, peeped from the other side of the projection at the same instant. The faces of the two enemies, bitter with hatred and kindled by two pairs of eyes burning with rage, were not six inches apart. Both men drew their weapons for battle on that narrow ledge, with no witnesses but the eagles. Wallace was the quicker of the two, and just as the Indian's arrow appeared around the rock the gun of the Texan cracked in the warrior's face and his body rolled, bounding from ledge to ledge, into the torrent below, while the eagles shrieked a requiem.

In September, 1842, when the Mexican General Woll made a dash into Texas and surprised and captured San Antonio, Wallace was serving with the famous Jack Hayes. This company of gallant horsemen were first in the enemy's front and formed a rallying point for the army that almost instantly assembled under General Matthew Caldwell. Hayes was ordered to select a battle-ground and he met the enemy at Salado. Here a pitched battle was fought between 300 Texans and 1,500 Mexicans, and the enemy were driven from the field with great slaughter. This was one of the greatest victories ever won by the army of Texas, and the republic was indebted to the individual bravery of the rank and file for all the glory of that memorable day. Big Foot Wallace was everywhere, sometimes firing a musket and at others slashing the enemy with a great bowie knife. The example of his valor among the whistling bullets was worth a whole regiment. After the great victory Colonel Jack Hayes put his hand on Wallace's shoulder and said: "Here's a soldier whom Napoleon would have made a marshal of France."

General Woll instantly commenced a hurried retreat towards Mexico, while the Texans hung on his rear and gave him no time to rest. Embarking in boats, they floated down the Rio Grande to the Mexican town of Mier. The alcalde surrendered the town and the Texans retired to their camp to await a supply of provisions which the alcalde had promised to collect. On December 25 the Texans discovered that General Ampudia, at the head of an army of 2,000 men, was in possession of Mier. They at once prepared to give him battle. "Bigfoot" Wallace said this was the hardest fought battle that he ever witnessed.

By a clever ruse the Texans were persuaded to surrender. The prisoners were at once started on a long march towards the dungeons of Perote, where they knew they would be tortured to death. At the Hacienda Salado, they overpowered a company of cavalry, and taking the arms and horses from the trembling wretches they rode away in a gallop. Had they kept the great high road, they could easily have marched straight to Texas, but a few shouted, "To the mountains!" Cameron and Wallace, realizing the mistake, but fearing the Texans might get separated, they left the road. There were 193 of them, enough to have whipped a whole Mexican army. It was not long before they were hopelessly lost and entangled in the mountain passes. Days passed and they saw no sign of a road or a human habitation. The weak began to perish of hunger and thirst. Brave soldiers rode along in speechless agony, with their tongues hanging black and parched from their cracked lips. Some became insane and rushed wildly about scratching into the earth for water. A few killed their horses, and others sucked the blood from the veins of the poor staggering beasts. Many threw away their arms and bade their comrades farewell.

Incredible as it may appear, nine out of these prisoners reached Texas. The remainder were returned to the Hacienda Salado and all heavily ironed. Santa Anna ordered every tenth man to be shot. One hundred and fifty-nine white beans and seventeen black ones were placed in an earthen mug and the prisoners drew for life or death.

The surviving Mier prisoners only had a few years to wait before an opportunity presented itself for them to avenge themselves upon the Mexicans. War soon afterward broke out between the United States and Mexico. Big Foot Wallace no sooner heard the news than he mounted his horse, and rode to the nearest military camp. He served with his characteristic energy and intrepidity and behaved with such gallantry at Monterey as to win a complimentary notice from the commanding general.

After peace had been made Big Foot Wallace returned to Texas, intending to do a little farming and raise a herd of cattle, but the Indians would not let the people alone, and he had to resume his old occupation of killing them. He followed them to their mountain fastnesses a hundred times, and skirmished with them equally as often. He fought nine pitched battles with them, beating them every time.

This broke the power of the Comanches and they never made another murdering expedition into that part of Texas.

The Lipans upon one occasion surprised Big Foot and made him a prisoner. A few days afterward Big Foot escaped and fled to his home. To his surprise, when he rode up to his gate, he found Juan Castro, their chief, there to salute him. The chief stayed over night with him. He wanted to make an alliance with the Texans against the Comanches and he induced Big Foot to go and see President Houston and execute the treaty for him.

Castro and Big Foot were ever after warm friends, and when the great chief died the Lipans invited Big Foot to his funeral.

From Mrs. Sunter to Mrs. Pinkham.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 7524]

"One year ago last June three doctors gave me up to die, and as I had at different times used your Vegetable Compound with good results, I had too much faith in it to die until I had tried it again. I was apparently an invalid, was confined to my bed for ten weeks. (I believe my trouble was ulceration of womb)."

"After taking four bottles of the Compound and using some of the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, at the end of two months I had greatly improved and weighed 155 pounds, when I never before weighed over 138. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine I ever used, and I recommend it to all my friends."—MRS. ANNA EVA GUNTER, HIGGINSVILLE, MO.

Mrs. Barnhart Enjoys Life Once More.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I had been sick ever since my marriage, seven years ago; have given birth to four children, and had two miscarriages. I had falling of womb, leucorrhoea, pains in back and legs; dyspepsia and a nervous trembling of the stomach. Now I have none of these troubles and can enjoy my life. Your medicine has worked wonders for me."—MRS. S. BARNHART, NEW CASTLE, PA.

A Favorite Everywhere

The qualities that have made this malt tonic popular with people everywhere are purity, palatability, malt strength. Then, too, it is a non-intoxicant.

Blatz Malt-Vivine excels all other tonics as a producer of flesh, blood and sound nerves. Tell your druggist that you want BLATZ MALT-VIVINE. If he suggests any other kind of malt preparation, go elsewhere, and get the genuine. Highest Awards at Trans-Miss. and International Exposition, 1898.

Every Garden Planted With Landreth's Seeds Will Yield Abundantly.

The time is at hand for garden and flower bed making. There is the usual rush for seeds, with an additional rush at our store. Only one thing to lay it too---LANDRETH, the cause. We handled LANDRETH Seeds last season and the season before; and each year finds a large increase in trade over the previous one. The fact that the LANDRETH seed house has been in business for 115 successive years gives buyers perfect confidence in the qualities of seeds at once. It is but natural that in that time the LANDRETH'S should have found the best way to raise seeds for planting and the best qualities to place on the market. We have never had a customer yet disappointed in LANDRETH Seeds. Of course, under certain conditions of soil, etc., any seed will not grow, but where there is a chance at all, LANDRETH'S will outstrip any seed in all qualities.

You Run No Chance Of Old Seeds.

Most seed houses are not particular about what is done with the old seed left over from last season and many times it is mixed with the new. Not so with LANDRETH'S. Old stock is burned up at the end of each season, so that you are perfectly safe in purchasing.
